

“Islamophobia: a word created by fascists and used by cowards to manipulate morons.”

~Tarek Fatah ~

The whole English-speaking world, it seems, was engulfed in laughter this week over Prime Minister Justin Trudeau's claimed joke about "peoplekind." But Trudeau's deep superficiality about PC language games is the least of our worries. Far more serious is Trudeau's insistence that ISIS fighters can be re-integrated into Canadian society and should be welcomed with open arms, no different from how we would welcome a refugee fleeing oppression.

Long before he was elected leader of our country, Trudeau made it clear that on subjects such as Islamic violence and Canada's security, he had nothing to offer but foolish platitudes. He expressed concern over the offense it might cause some Muslims to call honour killings "barbaric" in the Canadian citizenship guide, and he refrained from outright condemnation of the Boston bombers because they were young men, he said, who felt "completely excluded." More recently, his government's enthusiasm to "take action" against so-called Islamophobia will almost certainly limit Canadians' ability to criticize Islam as an ideology - an outrageous assault on our freedom of expression on a subject where it is desperately needed.

All of these are disturbing indications that our Prime Minister is a vapid progressivist with no ability to deal with serious matters. But to hear him answering a Town Hall question about how he will keep Canadians safe from returning ISIS terrorists with a tone-deaf celebration of ethnic diversity is to glimpse the real menace of his foolishness. We can laugh at dumb, certainly; but when dumb is on the side of terrorists, it's clear that the joke is really on the citizens of Canada.

One Day After Trudeau Tells Vets They Ask For Too Much, $59.5 million Goes to Burkina Faso

One week after telling a wounded veteran who lost a leg in Afghanistan that the Liberal government is fighting veterans in court over lifelong disability pensions because “they’re asking for more than we’re able to give right now”, Trudeau went into damage control mode, saying that “fixing the system that’s meant to help them & their families has been a priority since Day 1”.

DISTURBING: Trudeau Threatening Strict Regulations On Facebook

Justin Trudeau has consistently shown an opposition to freedom of speech and freedom of expression, and it’s no coincidence that he’s threatening to “regulate” Facebook – one of the social networks where opposition to his government is growing the fastest. A Toronto Star report reveals that a source with “direct knowledge” of a meeting between Justin Trudeau and Facebook COO Sheryl Sandberg says Trudeau is threatening stricter regulation of Facebook if they don’t “stop the spread of misleading information on their platform.”

Forget peoplekind, Trudeau's ISIS comments are the real problem by Candice Malcolm

Justin Trudeau thinks ISIS fighters should be treated the same way as the people fleeing the Nazis in the Second World War. He doesn't seem to grasp that ISIS fighters are not the victims of war; they are the perpetrators of war and genocide. The real victims — Assyrian Christians and Yazidis targeted and slaughtered by ISIS — have been routinely ignored and mistreated by the Trudeau government.

The Canadian Press destroys Trudeau's claim that pro-life work is not protected by the Charter

Now there's one of Canada's best-kept secrets: the Charter of Rights and Freedoms is intended to protect the people from the government, not to be used by the government as a tool against people or groups that it disagrees with. Another expert quoted by CTV pointed out that there is no legal right to abortion in Canada. Trudeau seems to have forgotten the fact that the Charter protects freedom of expression and freedom of conscience.

'Dumb jokes' about peoplekind tell us a lot about our shallow PM by John Robson

Justin Trudeau is not a totalitarian, of course. He lacks the requisite gravitas as well as depth of malice. As Jordan Peterson recently suggested on Fox & Friends, he seems to give very little thought to his thoughts. As so often, Trudeau's shiny shallowness reflects the prevailing temper clearly. And the impulse to reshape mankind in our own perfect image is far from innocent even in such a goofy incarnation.

Trudeau Critics 'Nazis,' Says Top Aide

Justin Trudeau, adored by the global left as the "anti-Trump," made international headlines last week when he interrupted a young woman asking a question at a town hall Q & A to tell her that the word was not "mankind," as she had said, but "peoplekind." "We like to say 'peoplekind', not necessarily 'mankind', because it's more inclusive," Trudeau said in Edmonton. In the wake of these columns and countless mocking segments on TV and talk radio, Gerald Butts, the principal secretary to Trudeau and his long-time friend, took to Twitter to link anyone who criticized his boss to what he called "alt right nazis."

Canadian PM: Sharia law is compatible with democracy

Countering those opposed to Sharia Law recognition, the Canadian government's Standing Committee on Canadian Heritage completed a draft of its Motion M-103 report, which recognizes "the need to...condemn Islamophobia" and "take action" against "religious discrimination including Islamophobia." According to the Ontario Human Rights Commission, Islamophobia includes "acts of intolerance and racial profiling" towards Muslims as well as "viewing Muslims as a greater security threat on an institutional, systemic and societal level."

Justin Trudeau Welcomes Sharia to Canada and Is a 'Complete Idiot'

Canadian Prime Minister Justin Trudeau has turned his country into a meme. He doesn't care what Islam does to peoplekind. That's according to commentator Paul Joseph Watson, whose latest video, "Justin Trudeau is a Complete Idiot," brilliantly excoriates the PM. Dare we say it's one of Watson's finest and funniest yet.

Alleged ISIS operative 'Jihadi Jack' begs Canada to let him come here

The Letts case is a major test of Prime Minister Justin Trudeau's oft-quoted diplomatic mantra that "a Canadian is a Canadian is a Canadian" — his response during the 2015 election campaign to the former Conservative government's legislation stripping suspected terrorists of their Canadian citizenship. Letts is not one of a group of four British ISIS militants known outside Syria as "The Beatles" because of their U.K. accents, and infamous for their role in the torture and killing of Western hostages.

As MPs look for Islamophobia, mosques continue promoting intolerance by Tarek Fatah

I asked the parliamentarians: "Will the Heritage Committee declare any religious prayer asking for a Muslim victory over other religious communities as hateful and thus criminal?" Sadly, the final report made no mention of the Islamic supplication that demeans Christians and Jews in all mosques of our country, a minimum of 17 times a day, from dawn to dusk.

The Canadian Broadcasting Corporation: Serving Canada or Serving Islamists? By Tom Quiggan

Canada's state broadcaster, the Canadian Broadcast Corporation (CBC) consistently supports the Islamist cause, including direct cooperation with terrorist front groups. This support extends to editing domestic Canadian stories to ensure that even ISIS is not criticized in the domestic context. Given that the CBC is owned by the Government of Canada and funded by taxpayers with a billion dollar a year subsidy, the question arises as to whom they serve.

Muslim prayer in public schools by Diane Bederman

In the 1990's, just a few years after The Lord's Prayer was removed from public schools, Muslim families requested the right for their children to pray in school; particularly on Friday, their Holy Day. Considering the ruling to remove Christian prayer from the schools, should we be opening our schools to prayer from different religious groups? Does allowing different groups to break off into their own prayer spaces promote diversity and inclusiveness? Amira Elghawaby, the communications director for the National Council of Canadian Muslims has stated that this issue is "simply Islamophobia.

The Quebec mosque story has many layers by Tom Quiggin

The January 29, 2017 attack was not an isolated event. In June 2016, a pig's head was left at the mosque. Three weeks later the mosque's neighbourhood was pamphleted and labelled as a Muslim Brotherhood centre. Following that, a blog site appeared. This blog also identified the CCIQ as a Muslim Brotherhood centre and raised the question "which one is more serious, a pig's head or a genocide?" This suggests a connection between these three events. The January shooting followed and in August 2017 the President of the mosque had his car burned in an arson attack.

Exclusive: FBI Confirms Jihadi Training Camps in US and Canada

Newly-released FBI documents obtained by Clarion Project confirm Clarion's reports that Jamaat ul-Fuqra is training members in isolated communes across America and Canada. ## Canada's Submission to Sharia Law

Canada does not need special Sharia courts. In October 2017, Ontario Superior Court Justice Robert Smith has already ruled in favor Sharia law. The Judge found a Muslim man "not guilty of sexually assaulting his wife" because the government failed to prove that he knowingly violated the criminal code, when "on many occasions [he had sex with his wife] without her consent "as both he and she believed that he had the right to do so." The man was found not guilty because it was "his honest belief that he had the right to have intercourse with her whenever he wanted."

Raheel Raza is fighting against Islamic Extremists by Barbara Kay

Raheel is a Canadian treasure. But her light has been hidden under the bushel of political correctness for too long. Thankfully, not everyone in our government is too blinkered or too intimidated to recognise her worth. ## M103 report makes Canada look like cesspool of intolerance by Anthony Furey

Whether it was intentional or not, the closing line of the report really gets at the heart of the matter: "While witnesses noted the significant achievements made in terms of equality and diversity, some acknowledged that Canada is not perfect and can do better." So, yes, let's all agree to try our best to be respectful of each other and not wage microaggressions. But let's collectively shut down the implicit argument furthered throughout this report, that Canadian society is some sort of hateful rot.

In the wake of last week's release of that much-anticipated House committee report on 'Islamophobia' and other forms of systemic racism and religious discrimination, the Canadian Muslim Forum and Canadians for Justice and Peace in the Middle East will release the results of a new survey that, according to the advisory, "indicate that prompt and concrete action on Islamophobia is required from the government" — and further, that "the recommendations from the Committee do not go far enough in addressing Islamophobia."

Canada: M-103 Heritage Committee report promises government action against "Islamophobia"

After the passing of M-103 in Parliament, the Standing Committee on Canadian Heritage proceeded with its study, conducting nearly a year of hearings from selected groups and members of the public, both for and against the motion. The cost of this extensive year-long Heritage Committee project was footed by taxpayers. The actual purpose and methodology of the study were vague. Now that it has emerged that the government is preparing to "take action" on those it deems to be "Islamophobic," Canadians are left in the dark as to what action will be taken (or range of actions) and by whose standards and definition one is deemed to be "Islamophobic."

Canada: "Discrimination against any or all religions should be addressed, without some form of priority for Islam"

The Catholic Civil Rights League (CCRL) opposed Canada's "Islamophobia" motion M-103 because "discrimination against any or all religions should be addressed, without some form of priority for Islam." One is that Trudeau is withholding summer job funding to any employer who will not sign a pro-abortion attestation. The second is the announcement by the Trudeau government that it will take action against "Islamophobia," a word that encompasses not only anti-Muslim bigotry, but also "dislike for" and criticism of Islam, including the oppressive features of political Islam.

The Danish minister of immigration and integration said in an article for newspaper BT and in a Facebook post, that the Danes have "lost" and have been "silenced" by Islam and its fundamentalist followers. The play "The Book of Mormons" is famous for being offensive. The director told Denmark's TV2: "If you are a mormon and do not want us to make fun of your faith, then do not go and see the play." "Try changing 'Mormon' to 'Muslim' and say that if you are a Muslim and do not want us to make fun of your faith, then do not go and see the play. ## France: Migrant Crisis Spirals Out of Control

Hundreds of Africans and Asians armed with knives and iron rods fought running street battles in the northern port city of Calais on February 1, less than two weeks after French President Emmanuel Macron visited the area and pledged to crack down on illegal immigration. The clashes plunged Calais — emblematic of Europe's failure to control mass migration — into a war zone and reinforced the perception that French authorities have lost control of the country's security situation.

FBI Takes on Islamophobia

The campaign to sanitize Islam began right after 9/11 and was international in scope. Since at least 2005, "Combatting Islamophobia" on a global basis has been a top priority of the United Nations and the Muslim Brotherhood-dominated Organization of Islamic Cooperation, a 57-nation group of Muslim-majority nations that makes up the largest voting bloc at the U.N. On January 10, BRIDGES, an FBI Outreach program, met in Michigan and served as a fresh reminder of how the FBI has made a concerted effort to divert the eyes of law enforcement officers away from Muslim communities as potential breeding grounds for terror and refocus attention on "Islamophobic" American citizens.

Macramé for Terrorists

When the FBI attempted to initiate a program that would address radicalization in society as a whole, particularly involving young people who were most vulnerable to the allure of groups like ISIS through the internet, it was met with stiff resistance from several groups including the American-Arab Anti-Discrimination Committee, which felt the program singled out Muslims. In some cases, defense attorneys have raised concerns that any de-radicalization program that attempts to change an inmate's religious beliefs, even those as twisted as a committed jihadist, would violate both the Religious Freedom Restoration Act and the First Amendment.

Muslims: The New Jews? by Diane Bederman

There is no comparison because Jews have been trained like Pavlovian dogs to retreat-either literally, by hiding, then running to another country; or figuratively; as don't rock the boat. Jews have been taught over the millennia to lay low until it passes. It, being the persecution, prosecution or pogrom. Or they have learned to take care of things quietly behind the scenes. Not make a fuss. When was the last time you heard a Muslim leader say hide or run? Or lay low? On the contrary Muslims are fearlessly calling for death to the Jews from their mosques in the streets, on social media. There is no dearth of Muslim chanting echoing the calls of the Nazis.

Europe: Making Islam Great Again

"We cannot and will never be able to stop migration", wrote the EU's Commissioner for Migration, Home Affairs and Citizenship, Dimitris Avramopoulos recently. "At the end of the day, we all need to be ready to accept migration, mobility and diversity as the new norm and tailor our policies accordingly". "Migration is deeply intertwined with our policies on economics, trade, education and employment", Avramapolous also wrote -- it is crucial to analyze what kind of "diversity" the EU is inviting to make its home on the European continent.
