A war memorial ‘built for soldiers by soldiers’ — that soldiers can’t even go see by Christie Blatchford

As the Chief of the Defence Staff, General Jon Vance, said on Facebook, the importance of the new Afghanistan Memorial Hall, particularly for the families of the fallen, “cannot be understated.” And then of course he and the Department of National Defence (DND) went and massively understated it.

General Jonathan Vance Must Be Fired

His tenure has consisted of failing to meaningfully build up the military, denigrating the military as being full of internal problems nearly every time he talks about it, treating Vice-Admiral Norman like garbage, doing Trudeau's dirty work, and now participating in a disgraceful snub of military families. All of that should add up to one thing: General Jonathan Vance should be fired.

Canada Moves to Ban Christians From Demonstrating in Public Under New "Anti-Hate" Proposal

Dark times in Canada. "Anti-hate" – who decides what's good and what's forbidden? Terror tied groups like CAIR? Antifa? Freedom of speech is the foundation of a free society. Without it, a tyrant can wreak havoc unopposed, while his opponents are silenced. As globalism and liberalism take a stronger hold in Canada, the government can be expected to become even more hostile to Christianity and more hospitable to subversive agendas.

They should've called it the Christchurch-Colombo Call for Action by Tarek Fatah

At last week's Paris Summit hosted by President Emmanuel Macron of France and Prime Minister Jacinda Ardern of New Zealand to "curb online extremism, representatives of Australia, Canada, France, Germany, Ireland, Italy, Japan, The Netherlands, Norway, Spain, Sweden and the UK all seemed to have etched 'Christchurch' on their minds, but could not recall the massacre a week later of over 250 Christians by Islamist terrorists in Colombo, Sri Lanka.

Details on Richmond Hill Terror Case Doesn't Pass Sniff Test

Acting on intel from our American friends, York Regional Police executed a search warrant at a Richmond Hill home. They seized precursor chemicals used to make explosives, at least one detonator and a copy of The Anarchist's Handbook, a guide to making bombs. Police arrested 2 suspects and then released them on $50,000 bail. No part of any of this case passes the sniff test.

Trudeau Government Launches DIGITAL CHARTER to Stop "Hate Speech" Online!

In the wake of The Christchurch call to action summit in Paris, prime minister of Canada Justin Trudeau just announced his new plan to launch a "Digital Charter" that seeks to stop online hate from spreading.

It's not actually what's in the Digital Charter that we should be worried about; it's what's left out

Canadians take free speech quite seriously. They understand those old slogans that there is no such thing as freedom from the offence or that one may not agree with that someone has to say but they'll fight for their right to say it. This appears to be a departure from that spirit.

Justin Trudeau Ignores Quebec Patriot Day, Celebrates Ramadan Instead

Victoria Day in Canada has come and gone, without Justin Trudeau mentioning a word about it. What our post-modern PM cares about is the success of globalism and the Nation of Islam. Upon the arrival of the 30-day Islamic holiday of Ramadan, Mr. Trudeau exuberantly announced: "Today, Muslims in Canada and around the world mark the start of Ramadan. Families and friends will gather to pray together, fast during the daytime, and break their fast in the evening at iftars around the globe.

C3RF Member Update - 24 May, 2019

This Update digs deeper into the parts that both state and non-state actors play in controlling just what you can see and hear. These efforts are just as much an affront to your free speech rights as those that would curtail or compel the expression of your own opinions and beliefs. The update also posits that these attacks on your right to free expression are expanding and accelerating and in dire need of pushback.

FREEDOM OF SPEECH

Truth and Freedom

Anybody genuinely concerned with the idea of truth, with deepening humanity's understanding of itself, nature and society, with encouraging the deployment of reason in order to render the world more knowable, ought to have a natural and in fact quite fierce disposition to freedom of thought and speech. The two go hand in hand. Actually, the one — truth — is reliant on the other — freedom. This point has been consistently argued by liberals throughout the modern period.

ISLAMOPHOBIA

Can the Brits Define 'Islamophobia'?

What criticisms of Muslims can be censored, sanctioned, or prosecuted? What kind of statements will we deem Islamophobic? The debate is starting to happen in the United Kingdom, and it will surely happen soon in American universities, corporations, and perhaps our legislatures. We ought to start thinking it through.

Brigitte Gabriel Slams Facebook for 'Hate Agent' Label, Demands Congressional Action

ACT for America founder and terrorism expert Brigitte Gabriel slammed Facebook for taking her words out of context and placing her on a list of potential "Hate Agents". Gabriel denounced Facebook for including her name on a list of "hate agents," and urged Congress to hold the Silicon Valley Masters of the Universe to account. "I have a long-documented career which includes 3 best selling books, addressing the United Nations, and working with dozens of elected officials" said Gabriel. "Does this sound like someone who is an 'Agent of Hate?'"

Malwarebytes, starts censoring Jihad Watch

Another product I have recommended in the past which was great back in the day when you could rely on them to remove browser adware and malware. But now, censors are deciding for you what content on the web is of value and to be trusted. Of course, if they get this wrong, they should not be trusted to do what they are meant to do, and protect your browser, you should uninstall, and let them know, here for Chrome and Firefox how they are failing.

Twitter is a virus of the mind

Rather than focusing on the content of what individuals post on social media, regulators might better focus on breaking up these behemoths, policing anticompetitive collusion among them, and in general ensuring that their powers are not abused. This approach, rooted in antitrust law, would raise no First Amendment or free speech problems, and would address many of the most significant complaints about social media.

Has the Day of the Nationalists Come?

A week from today, Europeans may be able to gauge how high the tide of populism and nationalism has risen within their countries and on their continent. Expectation: Nationalists and populists will turn in their strongest performance since the EU was established, and their parliamentary group — Europe of Nations and Freedom — could sweep a fourth of the seats in Strasbourg.

The EU is an empire in decay

The belief that the EU will disintegrate within two decades is an entirely rational one. The union bears many of the hallmarks of an empire in decay: it has over-extended its borders; it is attracting more outsiders than it desires or can accommodate; it has too many leaders; it has emerging nativist movements; and its poor are growing ever-more angry and resentful towards the political establishment.

Two Scandinavian journalists expose the West's demise from 'weak Christianity'

You cannot understand the world only from a political viewpoint. 'We are in a spiritual warfare and not just a political struggle. ... It has become a taboo to speak about religion due to this anti-religious ideology that claims that religion has no value. 'As long as we remain in this spiritual crisis, I don't think Europe will be able to defeat Islam. The reason why Islam is so successful here is because we have a spiritual vacuum.' The brief video is WELL WORTH watching:

Democrats' passage of "Equality Act" is the first stage in their attempts to CRIMINALIZE Christianity

The legislation would add sexual orientation and gender identity to characteristics protected by the 1964 Civil Rights Act. To Democrats like House Speaker Nancy Pelosi, the bill is "a top priority because equality for the LGBTQ community is a top priority" for the party. Thus, a vote for the act "is a vote against parents, it's a vote against women, it's a vote against doctors, it's a vote against educators, it's a vote against children."

Maryland school denigrates Christianity, promotes Islam; case gone to supreme court

“Under the guise of teaching history or social studies, public schools across America are promoting the religion of Islam in ways that would never be tolerated for Christianity or any other religion,” said Richard Thompson, The Thomas More Law Centre’s president. Many public schools have become a hot bed of Islamic propaganda. Teaching Islam in schools has gone far beyond a basic history lesson. Prompted by zealous Islamic activism and emboldened by confusing court decisions, schools are now bending over backwards to promote Islam while at the same time denigrate Christianity.

Burkina Faso: The New Land of Islamic Jihad and Christian Slaughter

Last Sunday, May 12, in the small West African nation of Burkina Faso, as many as 30 armed Islamic terrorists stormed a Catholic church, slaughtered at least six Christian worshippers — including the officiating priest — then burned the church to the ground. The situation in Burkina Faso is a reminder that, if groups like the Islamic State are on the wane in Iraq and Syria, the jihad continues to spread like wildfire in more obscure and forgotten nations around the world, and to consume countless nameless and faceless innocents.

Australia: tough on jihad Scott Morrison wins big in re-election, "shocks" media and pollsters

The result nobody predicted. For the out of touch mainstream media, there sure seems to be shock-waves, but there really shouldn't be. There is a shift going on and although immigration issues are front and center, Leftist crass politicking and public manipulations have blurred lines of reasoning and thus, the sensible analysis of all possible outcomes. It should be clear to anyone that citizens who have some clue about the state of domestic and world affairs (thanks to Islamization) should be at least interested in electing a leader who they can trust, one who represents their values, future well-being and confronts issues of pertinence.

Belgian taxpayers forced to compensate jihadi prisoners who were isolated

“A court in Belgium has forced the Belgian state to compensate radical Islamic prisoners because of a policy of isolating them from the rest of the prison population aimed at stopping the spread of radicalisation.”

Taxpayers are in essence being forced to foot a bill for jihadist prisoners that would enable them to continue spreading their jihadi ideology when they should be isolated to contain the spread of their Salafi doctrine. This clearly also threatens the security of Belgian citizens.

Federal Rats Are Fleeing the Sinking Collusion Ship by Victor Davis Hanson

The Trump administration’s Russia policies were far tougher on Vladimir Putin than were those of Barack Obama. Trump confronted Russia in Syria, upped defense spending, increased sanctions and kept the price of oil down through massive new U.S. energy production. He did not engineer a Russian “reset” or get caught on a hot mic offering a self-interested hiatus in tensions with Russia in order to help his own re-election bid. In sum, the old leaky vessel of collusion is sinking. The rats are scampering from their once safe refuge—biting and piling on each other in vain efforts to avoid drowning.

Our Collective Dive off the Cliff

Our immediate future is more Huxley than Orwell, our people freely choosing a life of enslavement to opiates and to sex with people whose names we can't be bothered to know. Those rare humans who choose to clutch precariously an existence devoted to the betterment of mind, body, and soul will (probably) not be whisked away in the dead of night to the gulag. They will merely be relegated to the fringes of acceptable society, their natural habitats and proclivities to be fleetingly observed by their fascinated, curious betters like a prehistoric animal whose species somehow survived all this time in the depths of a Congo jungle.

In Defence of the Minority of One

The building block of democracy is individual liberty. So: liberty first, democracy second. Countries conceived in liberty, like England and its offshoots in the United States, Canada, Australia, and New Zealand, tend to support strong and stable democracies. Even in South Africa, where the ancient liberties of Englishmen were until very recently restricted to a small minority of the population, a solid democracy has been built on a foundation of individual liberty. Lacking that foundation, it took France five tries to build a lasting democracy – assuming that the Fifth Republic outlasts the gilets jaunes protests. Democracy without liberty is a house built on sand.

John Guandolo: A champion of freedom

In the war of survival against militant Islam, there are very few people in this country who truly understand the ideology and are willing to fight back. One such individual is former FBI agent John Guandolo, a tireless patriot who works around the clock to train the law enforcement officers, including local police, sheriff departments and the "FBI Joint Terrorism Task Force agent/officers who were absolutely unaware of the massive jihadist program in place in our communities before his training sessions."

"By knowing the doctrine driving the enemy -- sharia (Islamic Law) -- and by understanding the Islamic network in the United States, their modus operandi, how they communicate their intentions, and how they interact with their Marxist collaborators, professionals can conduct predictive analysis and understand real-world events in ways nobody else can."

Our homes are our castles: in defence of privacy

Historical experience shows us that whenever the state seeks to politicise private life – for example, during the Cultural Revolution in China – public life in turn becomes depoliticised. So, protecting the private realm is essential if we want to have a healthy public life. Privacy is essential if people are to nurture their ability to make something of themselves. It is within the confines of the private realm that people can think, reflect, test out new ideas and thoughts on their intimates, develop their political capacities, and acquire the moral resources that are absolutely essential for conducting a serious public life.
