CANADIAN ELECTION

MONDAY, OCTOBER 21

This C3RF Analysis is a MUST READ

C3RF Update – 18 October 2019

C3RF Update - 18 Oct, 2019 is the last before the Canadian federal election to be held on 21 Oct, 2019. It casts back to a time in Canadian history when reckless government spending put Canada on the verge of falling into a third world debt pit. The time was 1994 and came on the heels of profligate spending by both Liberal and Progressive Conservative governments. It is this time that most established political parties plan to shepherd Canadians back to if they deliver on the promises they are making this election cycle. Indeed, it appears this might have been what Justin Trudeau meant when he said "Canada's back". Thing is, in going back, Canadians will have to give up on personal and fundamental rights that would afford them the freedom to oppose such nonsense.

An Election for the Boo-Birds by David Solway

The leaders of our traditional parties can only be charitably described as, to be blunt, imbeciles or scoundrels, or both. Much has been written about Liberal prime minister Justin Trudeau as Canada's Embarrassment-in-Chief, a bezomian who has regularly beclowned himself in public, praised China's "basic dictatorship," assured us that budgets balance themselves, embroiled himself in scandals, been found in violation of the Conflict of Interest Act, bribed the media with the promise of a $600 million gift, and indebted Canada's future generations to the tune of $685.5 billion and counting—indeed, Trudeau is projected to be the largest debt accumulator in Canadian history. No wonder he has recently been endorsed by Barack Obama.

- Conservative leader Andrew Scheer has all the depth, substance, and personality of a breakfast pancake and is practically invisible on the election stumps.
- New Democrat Party leader Jagmeet Singh, like Bernie Sanders, promises the moon and all the planets without indicating how he realistically intends to pay for the bonanza of free stuff he is prepared to give away.
- Greenie Elizabeth May is a national joke, appealing mainly to leftcoasters. Back in the day she warned that we had only weeks to meet the Kyoto Accord objectives. Now, a decade later, she's at it again hyping the Paris Agreement targets—or else. If Elizabeth goes unheeded, we will all shortly
- The only federal leader who has the vigor, forthrightness, insight, gumption, and plain-speaking smarts of a Trump is the aforementioned Maxime Bernier. Maxime Bernier might derive some consolation from the fact that Donald Trump wouldn't stand a chance in this country.

So, we are now engaged in an election favoring the Boo-Birds, whether Trudeau, Scheer, or Singh, or some possible coalition of the Libs and NDP.

Will Canada survive this federal election? By Dr. Patrick Moore

Alberta's first move after the election will likely be to hold a referendum calling for a renegotiation of the equalization payments formula. Under the present formula, Alberta is required to make large payments despite their now very difficult economic situation. An inevitably successful referendum result would force Ottawa and the other provinces to the table, but it is likely the talks will fail, increasing resentment in the province. Then Premier Kenny will have the ammunition he needs to call for a referendum on the separation of Alberta from Canada. This may pass with a comfortable majority.

Jagmeet Singh's NDP officially supports BDS against Israel

Justice and Peace in the Middle East (CJPME) interviewed Jagmeet Singh and one of the questions asked was:

CJPME: Do you oppose Israeli ethnic cleansing, war crimes and apartheid?

Singh: We oppose all human-rights abuses committed by Israel, including killings, arbitrary and abusive detention, forced displacement, restrictions on movement, the expansion of illegal settlements, and all other human-rights abuses.

Ontario MPP Jagmeet Singh denied visa to visit India

"The government of India, like any other government, has a sovereign right to grant or refuse a visa to any foreign individual and it is not obliged to give any justification or explanation for exercising this prerogative," Indian Consul-General Akhilesh Mishra says about the denial of the visa last December. People "who seek to undermine" Indian democratic institutions "and foment contempt to the country, its constitution and its judiciary are only misusing the pretext of human rights to pursue their insidious agenda of disturbing the social fabric of India and undermining the peace, harmony and territorial integrity of India," he wrote.

Elizabeth May, Jagmeet Singh Slammed by Jewish Groups Over Gaza Comments

"It is concerning and quite telling that, while solely criticizing Israel, Elizabeth May claims – against all the evidence – that Hamas is committed to non-violence. May displays shocking ignorance by neglecting fact that many of the Gazan fatalities were Hamas operatives or members of other terror groups, and that some were killed after firing assault rifles at Israelis," Sampson stated.

Elizabeth May Wants Canada To Bring In "Tens Of Thousands" Of 'Climate Refugees'

Elizabeth May wants Canada to bring in tens of thousands of "climate refugees." Notably, May is basing her refugee numbers on United Nations claims that there will be 200 million 'climate refugees' by 2050. May is wrong when she calls Canada one of the biggest polluters, as we are in fact one of the smallest polluters in the world.

Speech included Welcome Back, Kotter theme song and barb at Conservative cabinet

In the Khadr section of her speech, Ms. May said she meant to make the point that Canada is a country that gives people second chances and that she hopes Canadians welcome him into their midst. "Omar Khadr, you've got more class than the whole f-----g cabinet," May said referring to the Conservative party as conservative MP and Transport Minister Lisa Raitt tried to usher her off the stage.

As Joe Biden waits for his Obama endorsement, blackface Canadian Justin Trudeau gets his Foreign meddling, anyone? In a move that's sure to turn some Canadian voters off, President Obama stepped in and offered his endorsement to Canada's Prime Minister Justin Trudeau. It was, to say the least, rather unconventional. But here we are, with foreigner Trudeau getting that coveted Obama endorsement. Pretty insulting to wretched old Joe, who's still waiting for his.

Justin Trudeau But Not Joe Biden

As the excitement mounted, Tucker Carlson and Mark Steyn pondered a world in which America's first black president endorses Canada's first black prime minister - but not his own vice-president.

Obama Involved in Canadian Federal Election

The hypocrisy of Barack Obama endorsing Trudeau five days out from the October 21st federal election is both breathtaking and unprecedented. Millions of average Canadians have had enough of the scandal-plagued Liberal Party and of their leader Justin Trudeau. Canadians who are reading this article can do much better than to just tell Obama "Back Off Barack!", by getting out on Election Day and voting for the candidate and party of their choice.

Coalition of Chaos

This election day, the future of Canada is on the line. If Trudeau stays in power, he will be even more emboldened to break Ethics Laws, lie to Canadians, raise taxes, centralize power, and break promises, since he will have gotten away with all of it thanks to his media enablers. That is why Justin Trudeau cannot be allowed to remain in power. If he does, government corruption, division, separatism, anger, and chaos will reach levels never before seen in our country, and there is no guarantee that Canada would survive in its current form. For the sake of the country we love, Justin Trudeau must be defeated.

Canadian Elections: Three Jokers and a Trump! By Raheel Raza

Enter the Islamists. As a Muslim, I am encouraged to see more Muslim candidates, but I fear of the entrance of the Islamists, particularly those influenced by the Muslim Brotherhood or their affiliates like the Jamaat-e-Islami or the Pakistani Interservice Intelligence (ISI) operating freely in Canada and sticking their nose in politics.

Maxime Bernier (PPC) is a man who says it as he sees it. All he wants is to be able to discuss and debate issues like Immigration, freedom of speech and trade. But in this politically correct environment, he has a real challenge on his hands as his party is brand new, so he is being shunned from media coverage.

Salim Mansur's Battle Against Islamism

In June, Mansur was nine months into a campaign for the Conservative Party of Canada's nomination in the same riding when he received a terse email from the party's executive director notifying him his candidacy had been "disallowed." No reasons were provided, though Mansur told me in a later interview that the Conservative campaign manager, Hamish Marshall, had told him there were concerns his past writings on Islam would be slammed in the media as "Islamophobic."

National Council of Canadian Muslims (NCCM) SLAM Anglophone Canada in Federal Election Guide

So, the National Council of Canadian Muslims (NCCM) demand a freedom of speech crackdown to protect their community interests. How "democratic" of them. NCCM continues to amaze Cultural Action Party of Canada with their strident, sanctimonious belief that this ethnocentric not-for-profit organization have the right to brazenly demand to control political discourse within Canadian society.

We have one simple question for Mustafa Farooq, Executive Director of the National Council of Canadian Muslims: Who do you think you are to attempt to push around non-Islamic Canada, which as Stats Can claim, comprise 96% of our nation's demographic?

An Albertan's letter to voters in Ontario and Quebec

On the eve of our Canadian Federal Election, I feel it is prudent to share with our fellow Canadians in the East how pivotal this election is for our Country. I recognize a strong disconnect between the regions and believe I have a responsibility to share our feelings, perceptions, and fears with the men and women of these provinces.

It is no secret that the election is decided before the first vote is counted in Manitoba. 199 of the 338 seats in the House of Commons are held by your two provinces. Your votes decide our election. This is why I am appealing to you. The fate of Canada and our incredible province of Alberta rests in your hands.

What's this election about? The future of Alberta by Rex Murphy

The only mosquito in the face cream, is of course, St. Greta of the Frowns and Glares, more familiarly known as Greta of Green Fables. She sees Trudeau as a climate slacker. He's a pipeline buyer, which according to the Thunberg gossellers, makes the angels of the troposphere weep in shame and anger. To young Greta, such is her passion, not to be living in an unfurnished cave, tweeting via smoke signal, and travelling only as the wind lists, means you are a pagan/heretic — and even worse, you may be an adult.

Trudeau's Government Tried to Block My Election Reporting. (Thankfully, It Failed)

Our greatest sin is that we are considered right-of-centre in the Canadian political and media landscape. But even if you sit on a different point of the political spectrum, you should be appalled at the failed effort to exclude us from covering Canadian politics: The next time something like this happens, it could be a Conservative government seeking to silence progressives, and that would be just as wrong.

We are fighting on behalf of all Canadians to protect our constitutional liberties. And we hope that by the time the next election comes around, the basic right of journalists to cover a federal election won't still be under threat.

Andrew Scheer's Departure from Social Conservatism

Since the spring, Action4Canada has committed to providing you with information on parties leading into the election. The Liberals, NDP and Greens have pretty much voted the party line of the Liberals on most critical issues in the past four years. Almost without exception.

- Bill C-16 (allowing men into women's private spaces),
- Motion M-103 (Islamophobia motion eliminating criticism of Islam),
- Bill C-75 (weakening our laws),
- Bill C-71 (gun control),
- Bill C-45 (cannabis legalization),
- Open borders, climate change hysteria, carbon tax, Paris accord and UN/Globalism and socialism.

You call it and their names are all over it. Unfortunately, the leader of the conservative party, Andrew Scheer, has decidedly taken the party left on a number of critical issues as well.

VOTE ON OCTOBER 21

Voting is a civic sacrament. Every election is determined by the people who show up. If you don't vote, you lose the right to complain.

Refusing to vote isn't rebellion. It's surrender.

Love your country? Prove it. Vote.
