“There are two sides to every issue: one side is right and the other is wrong, but the middle is always evil. The man who is wrong still retains some respect for truth, if only by accepting the responsibility of choice. But the man in the middle is the knave who blanks out the truth in order to pretend that no choice or values exist.”

The London killings are a tragedy, but legislation on Islamophobia is still a bad idea.

On the night of Sunday, June 6, a family of five, out for an evening stroll, were waiting on a sidewalk in London, Ontario, for the light to change, when they were rammed by a pick-up truck driven by 21-year-old Nathaniel Veltman. The parents were killed along with their 15-year-old daughter and the man’s 74-year-old mother; their 9-year-old son survived and remains in hospital. The family was Muslim and, without revealing details, police say they believe the attack was premeditated and motivated by hate.

Unsurprisingly, calls for the government to take action against Islamophobia were nearly instantaneous, and a petition was soon launched through change.org to make June 6 a National Day Against Islamophobia, reminiscent of the calls to so designate January 29 following the shootings in a Quebec City mosque in 2017.

Regardless of the tragedies of the targeted anti-Muslim shooting in Quebec City, and the presumed targeted recent murders in London, a National Day Against Islamophobia remains a bad idea. "Islamophobia" is a political term that was created to deliberately conflate discrimination or violence against Muslims with criticism of Islam. Violence against anyone is illegal, while criticism of any religion or ideology is protected by free speech.

There are no calls to fight "kuffar-ophobia" when Muslims kill in the name of their religion, as did the killers of Nathan Cirillo on Parliament Hill and Patrice Vincent in St.-Jean-sur-Richelieu. Our leaders did not make a public display of their grieving, nor raise their voices against "online hate," when Reese Fallon and Julianna Kozis were killed, and 13 others injured, by a Muslim shooter in Toronto. The death of Merissa Shen in Vancouver, who was killed by a Syrian refugee, did not raise concerns about the online spread of Islamic hate. Even the mere (alleged) cutting of the hijab of a schoolgirl in Toronto, which turned out to be a hoax, led to a national story, with the mayor of Toronto, the premier of Ontario, and the prime minister swiftly and publicly condemning the attack. The actual unprovoked attack on an elderly woman in Windsor, Ontario, who was beaten so savagely by a Muslim man that the surgeon who treated her said of her injuries, "The worst skull fractures I've seen in my 12 years here in Windsor," received scarce media attention outside of Windsor, nor was there a very public expression of concern by any of our leaders. Sara Anne Widholm died in obscurity after being in a coma for over a year.

The attack on Madiha Salman and her husband Salman Afzaal, his mother and their two children, is a crime and a tragedy. The perpetrator should be punished and his motives and actions investigated. But the incident should not be used to advance the political agenda of the Islamists, which is to create a panic about Islamophobia, control what can be said on social media, and quell any criticism of Islam.

Muslims not safe in Canada? Nonsense.

Was it 'Islamophobia' that triggered the driver's actions? I doubt the suspect knows much about Islam to be Islamophobic. What was racism and xenophobic was given the name 'Islamophobia', thus handing over the debate back into the hands of Islamists still smarting from their 2005 defeat in trying to sneak Sharia Law in Ontario. But as it is with every such tragedy, the mandarins who have crafted their leadership in 'multicultural' society cry victimhood without ever glancing at the mirror to vet their own prejudices.

No, Jagmeet, Canada is not a racist country. It's one of the most tolerant places on earth

Any evidence that racism is on the rise is deplorable and every racist incident must be condemned in the strongest possible terms. However, Singh does the cause of fighting racism no favours by taking an extreme and exaggerated position that I, as an immigrant and person of colour, cannot agree with. Are there racists in Canada? Sure. Is Canada a racist country? Absolutely not. By any metric, Canada is one of the most tolerant countries on the planet, and one which I am proud to call home.

The Politics of Grief with Andrew Lawton

Four members of a London, Ontario Muslim family were killed and a nine-year-old boy hospitalized after what police say was a targeted attack. In this edition of The Andrew Lawton Show, Andrew pays his respects to the family, and laments how a vigil to memorialize them turned into a political rally. Council for Muslims Facing Tomorrow president Raheel Raza joins to share her thoughts on the attack, and explain why protecting free speech and condemning hatred are not mutually exclusive.

The politicization of terrorism with Candace Malcolm

Canadians have universally condemned the horrific attack on Sunday in London, Ontario. Canadians are rightly angry that this happened, and we want to make sure that newcomers know that one deranged young man who committed an evil act does not represent the broader Canadian community. However, almost immediately after the facts were known, the left-wing media quickly politicized this tragedy and are using it as an opportunity to demonize conservatives. True North's Candice Malcolm calls out the media for their dishonesty and corrects the record.

REMEMBERING: Inside the Shafia killings that shocked a nation

This is a good day for Canadian justice. This verdict sends a very clear message about our Canadian values and the core principles of a free and democratic society that all Canadians enjoy, and even visitors to Canada enjoy." At the end of most criminal trials-especially murder trials-relatives are given a chance to tell their story, to explain just how unspeakable their loss has been. For Rona, Zainab, Sahar and Geeti, nobody came forward to confront their killers. Not a brother. Not a sister. Nobody. In life, and in death, they had no voice. No one to protect them. No one to save them.

BREAKING: Maxime Bernier has been arrested during political tour of Manitoba

People's Party of Canada Leader Maxime Bernier has been arrested by Manitoba police during his tour of the province, according to a source within the party. According to Daniel Tyrie, the executive director of the People's Party, "[Police] advised him that if he went forward with the next event he will likely be fined again, and persistent violations will result in an arrest." Apparently that arrest ended up happening in the early afternoon before he could hold a rally that evening.

Jews victims of more hate crimes than any religious group in Canada

An average of six antisemitic incidents occurred every day of 2019. Jewish Canadians are the most targeted religious group for hate crimes in the country, a new study from Statistics Canada found. The study analyzed some 1,946 hate crimes reported to the police in 2019. This number alone is not only a 7% increase from 2018, but represents the second-highest number of hate crimes reported to the police per year in Canadian history, with only 2017 seeing more (2,073 reported hate crimes).

Canada could take in some Central American migrants to help U.S.

Canada is prepared to take in some Central American migrants to help the United States, which is grappling with an influx of migrants at its southern border with Mexico, Canadian Immigration Minister Marco Mendicino said. Doesn't this make you feel like a nice warm and fuzzy Canadian? Skip the US-Mexico border; come straight to Canada. Wonder how many MS13 will come here and we thought we had enough crime and gun violence. They will be screened of course 😊

Two suspects arrested in connection with Mississauga restaurant shooting, third suspect remains at large

According to Peel Regional Police, suspects Naqash Abbasi and Suliman Raza entered the premises and began shooting at the staff, striking the 56-year-old owner, his 44-year-old wife, his two sons aged 22-years-old and 25-years-old, and a 58-year-old male employee. Naim Akl, the 25-year-old son of the restaurant's owner, was pronounced dead at the scene. A third suspect, Anand Nath, remains at large.

Mark Carney, man of destiny, arises to revolutionize society. It won't be pleasant

Carney draws inspiration from, among others, Marx, Engels and Lenin, but the agenda he promotes differs from Marxism in two key respects. First, the private sector is not to be expropriated but made a "partner" in reshaping the economy and society. Second, it does not make a promise to make the lives of ordinary people better, but worse. Carney's Brave New World will be one of severely constrained choice, less flying, less meat, more inconvenience and more poverty: "Assets will be stranded, used gasoline powered cars will be unsaleable, inefficient properties will be unrentable," he promises.

O Canada, you've got medical Nazis; their stench is rising into the sky

The College of Physicians and Surgeons of Ontario (CPSO) "regulate the practice of medicine in Ontario. Physicians are required to be members to practice medicine in Ontario." In other words, CPSO is THE medical board. They run the show. If practicing doctors make a wrong move or say the wrong thing, CPSO is there to step on their faces and discipline them and even cancel their licenses to practice. But now a new rebel group of Canadian MDs has emerged. Why? Because CPSO has issued a fascist edict threatening practicing doctors. Read the threat carefully.

Bilingualism Requirement for Supreme Court Judges Decried as Favouring French

"Anglophones have basically surrendered, becoming a doormat to the 20 percent of Canada ... [and a] federal government which pushes the issue of bilingualism and biculturalism in a manner that's heavily tilted to the interests of Quebec rather than to the interests of the majority," Mansour said. "And that is leading to greater and greater distancing between the English and French in the federation, when bilingualism and multiculturalism were originally seen as a remedy to the problem."

Easing of border restrictions to apply to those fully vaccinated: Trudeau

Canada's COVID-19 Testing and Screening Expert Advisory Panel, comprised of infectious disease specialists and public health experts, laid out an extensive framework for how to adapt quarantine and testing rules for those not vaccinated, partially vaccinated, and fully vaccinated arriving into the country. C3RF Update –11 June 2021

This week's update puts the spotlight on a first-rate epidemiological analysis conducted by Julius Ruechel. The analysis incorporates first-hand data from Public Health Canada and reveals a shocking misread of the problems and populations both raised and impacted by the Wuhan virus. How else to explain lockdown strategies that worked counter to their stated purposes and repeat errors that resulted in unnecessary death. Ruechel paints a picture of incompetence and emerging scandal that needs to be blunted if more cycles of freedom-crushing madness are to be prevented.

Employee Vaccine Notice of Liability

Employers are not medical professionals and, therefore, they are unlawfully practising medicine by prescribing, recommending, and/or using coercion to insist employees submit to the experimental medical treatment for Covid-19, namely being injected with one of the experimental gene therapies commonly referred to as a "vaccine". According to top constitutional lawyer, Rocco Galati, "both government and private businesses cannot impose mandatory vaccinations...mandatory vaccination in all employment context would be unconstitutional and/or illegal and unenforceable."

ADL's 'Brief History on Anti-Semitism'

Jews are now facing global abuse at levels reminiscent of the Nazi era, but it's not generated by Christians; rather, it emanates from the Palestinian jihad against the Jewish state of Israel, backed by powerful Islamic powerbrokers — an "unsafe" longstanding issue that the ADL avoids — failure of nerve that many share.

BIG TECH

Big Tech takes a giant step towards totalitarianism

Who in hell are Zuckerberg and Dorsey to trash the credo to liberty expressed by Justice Brandeis in Whitney v. California? Who in hell are Zuckerberg and Dorsey to trash our "profound national commitment" to speech that "may well include vehement, caustic and sometimes unpleasantly sharp attacks" on Democrats? And they dare claim that Republicans are undermining our democratic institutions? Today we recognize, as a sad variation on the theme by Justice Brandeis, the totalitarian leanings of the Big Tech companies to eradicate eradicate the Constitution's guarantee of free speech and assembly.

Big Tech Censors Are Unqualified To Talk About Free Speech

"These companies—that assume the right to decide what you and I can know, read and say—are nowhere near up for the job," Murray said. "My own view is that actually nobody could be, but they are especially unqualified; they talk about free speech as if nobody thought about it until a seminar they had some time last semester. In an otherwise good article, nails-on-a-chalkboard Trump-hatred from Vanity Fair

It is so old now, and so worn out, this Trump-hatred, everything revolving around Trump-hatred, everything tainted with Trump-hatred. These people need to use a little introspection at some point. I want to tell this woman, and every haughty, smug, over-confident liberal out there just how petty they show themselves to be. Here she writes a decent article

CHINA

The Effect of Communist China on America's Clean Energy Plan

China's de facto monopoly on rare earth materials forms an acute problem: international reliance on them could hamper vital industries and national security at a time of maximum competition between China and the US. Wind turbines, solar panels and electric vehicles all rely on rare earth materials and China has a head start that can be measured in decades, when it comes to producing the various products of which they form a crucial part: More than 60% of the world's solar panels... are made in China.

FRANCE

France's mega-mosque problem

The big, and often misleading, row over the big mosque is part of a wider and dangerous polarisation of attitudes to Islam in France. The far-Right and even part of the traditional Right exploit Islamist excesses and exaggerate Islamist influence to disguise and promote more generalised Islamophobia. Meanwhile, part of the Left refuses to admit that violent, Islamist ideology is advancing — or even that it exists.

Fraud in Peru? Conservative-populist Keiko Fujimori was ahead in vote until a sudden late-night direction switch

In another piece of sour news out of South America, Peru's populist-conservative candidate, Keiko Fujimori, has seen her election lead suddenly vanish from the vote count that came of Sunday's election. If so, it's extremely worrisome, assuming that this leftist, Pedro Castillo, manages to fraud his way into office. This is sad. And a scary reminder that such fraud is becoming less and less an anomaly. It will be interesting what the Bidens say about this if the fraud becomes pretty obvious.

UK: Smash the Muslim patriarchy

The murder of Sarah Everard was brutal, but it was no less brutal than the murders of Saeeda Hussain or Sana Muhammad or Mayra Zulfiquar or countless other women in the UK. I guarantee you that not one feminist today could "say their names," as they instruct us to do in relation to Sarah, in connection with Saeeda or Sana or Mayra. Feminists aren't out protesting about these women's deaths, because it was Muslim men who killed them. Muslim women in the UK are being killed for not marrying the man of their father's choosing, while liberal feminists are screaming into a void about the most trivial issues, such as right to post footage of them having multiple abortions as a TikTok craze, and to prostitute their way through university.

The Islamification of large parts of England

Just as the French have ceded the banlieues around Paris to Muslims who fail to assimilate, and Sweden is struggling with the unassimilated Muslim community in Malmö, England has allowed large swaths of the country to become entirely Islamic. England is a country that could once boast that it was last invaded in 1066. After that, it repulsed the Spanish in 1588, Napoleon in the early 19th century, and Hitler during WWII. Beginning in the 1990s, though, it willingly invited in a community that will soon overtake it in demographics and in fanatic vigor.

We have media that preaches only the much-exaggerated sins of America. We tolerate policies and lawlessness designed to "fundamentally change" the culture and majesty that is America. We have educators who vilify the founders and history of America. We have political leaders who want to mimic the governments and practices of the enemies of America.

Everything was better with President Trump in the White House

While Trump put America first in all things, Biden is blatantly putting America last to the delight of China, Russia, and Iran, our three main adversaries. America's Cultural Revolution: with Bari Weiss

This is what Cancel Culture is about. This is a sad story of a grateful Palestinian immigrant who came to America – who worked hard; lived the American dream and was a grateful patriotic American citizen. What the public shaming of Palestinian immigrant Majdi Wadi — and the boycott of his Minneapolis business — says about who we are becoming.

Cancel culture is rightly understood as a weapon. It's a weapon of the soft cultural revolution we are living through. It's a weapon wielded to redraw the bounds of what's good and what's bad, what's in and what's out, who is on the right side of history — and who isn't. Majdi Wadi understands that better than most.
