“Bloodshed, gentlemen, no doubt is lamentable. I have seen some of it--more perhaps than many of those who talk about it with such levity. But there are worse things than bloodshed, even on an extreme scale. The trampling down of law and order which, under the conditions of a civilised state, assure life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness--all this would be worse than bloodshed.”

Ottawa Journalist Chris Dacey Exposes Islamic 'Performative Prayer' as Public Intimidation

Ottawa journalist Chris Dacey has been documenting what he calls “performative prayer” for years: public displays of Islamic ritual staged not as private worship, but as political acts of intimidation and control. Since Hamas’s October 7, 2023, massacre in Israel, Dacey says these demonstrations have become more frequent, more aggressive, and more openly tied to the destruction of Western nation-states.

Why block public streets when Ottawa has many mosques? "It's to establish dominance, to show that they can... that they can close the street down, that they can pray, and no one can say or do a thing about it," Dacey explained. He added that in his experience, those who film risk being attacked — and too often, police take the path of least resistance by targeting the journalist instead of the aggressors.

Rolling out the blood red carpet for terrorists

Eight ISIS brides received the VIP treatment during repatriation missions costing over $170,000. Business-class flights from Damascus. Montreal Airport Marriott accommodations. Room service and wine tabs exceeding $1,000 per person. These women joined a terrorist organization that beheaded journalists, enslaved Yazidi girls, and committed genocide. Our response? Luxury travel and premium hospitality

This isn't about compassion or international obligations. It's about basic competence and sovereignty. A serious country doesn't import its enemies. It doesn't reward terrorism with luxury accommodation. It doesn't allow foreign agents to weaponize humanitarian protections.

Carney talks tough but delivers weakness for Canada

It's been 120 days since Mark Carney was voted into office and he's been on two vacations. Parliament has not sat since June and won't resume until Sept. 23. In fact, he was in office barely a month — enough time to put in a Cabinet — before he took off on vacation, only popping up to make various edicts as if he had a majority government and he's the dictator of Canada.

CRA's New Proposed Audit Powers Will Give the State Even More Control Over Citizens

Oh great. Just what we needed. The Canada Revenue Agency is getting new implements of torture. Not the old-tyme rack, thumbscrew, and boot. Instead, they want to hit you with huge fines and perjury charges if you don't do the audit their way. Bad King John is back. The excuse, of course, is "efficiency," a subject on which governments are famously expert. But here's the thing. If you've ever been audited, and I don't just mean the formal Inquisition but a simple matter of them thinking you owe money you don't, you are well aware that they hit you with rapidly escalating fines but won't take your calls.

Who Guards Our Freedoms Better, Judges or Politicians?

Since the Charter was added to Canada's Constitution in 1982, Section 33 has generated much outrage from time to time. For example, Quebec has used Section 33 to preserve language laws that obviously violate freedom of expression. Using Section 33, Quebec prohibits teachers, lawyers, police officers, and many others from wearing religious symbols such as crosses, hijabs, turbans, and yarmulkes.

Some want Section 33 removed from the Charter, arguing that it allows politicians to violate the fundamental rights and freedoms of citizens. Oddly, those who oppose Section 33 rarely complain about a very similar provision that allows Canada's judges to permit governments to violate the fundamental rights and freedoms of citizens: Section 1.

Breaking: Dallas Brodie to file private prosecution against 'mouthpiece for terrorism' Charlotte Kates

"She called the October 7th massacre 'brave and heroic,' she celebrated the assassinations of two diplomats on U.S. soil, she's British Columbia's most notorious mouthpiece for terrorism and she leads crowds in the glorification of violence. Her name is Charlotte Kates, the leader of an organization called Samidoun... Just last year on the anniversary of the October 7th civilian slaughter in Israel Kates' organization Samidoun, was widely reported handing out pamphlets at the Vancouver Art Gallery promoting complex coordinated terrorist attacks," the Vancouver-Quilchena MLA and former attorney also stated on X.

C3RF Update, 22 Aug 2025 – Enemies

This week's update scours the Canadian landscape for enemies and finds them on many fronts. Between enemies of the state, in the form of "witting" parliamentarians who support foreign actors, and enemies of the people who work to shield them from the rule of law, the country is spinning away from the control of "we the people". Then there are the enemies of humanity who proclaim "safe and effective" when our lyin' eyes tell us otherwise. All this even as Artificial Intelligence promises to complicate things further with the prospect of "garbage in, garbage out". Enemies indeed?

C3RF "In Hot" interview with Jeff Evely

Major Russ Cooper (Ret'd) discusses the state of Canadian civil liberties with Master Warrant Officer Jeff Evely (Ret'd), an Afghan War vet that is on the frontlines of battling government overreach. So it is as he challenges the Nova Scotia government over a $28,000 fine for walking "in the woods". Is he being selfish for not thinking of the "public good" or has the government just abandoned any notion of fundamental, individual rights and freedoms?

Defend Our Churches: Stop the Attack on Charitable Status

The Liberals have been undermining the foundation of our nation for over a decade, and Christians and the Church have borne the brunt. Under Trudeau, faith communities have been vilified, stripped of protections, and even burned to the ground while government leaders stood silent, and Mark Carney appears to be continuing this trend.

FREEDOM CONVOY

Three Weeks in Ottawa, Three Years in Court: The Untold Story of Canada's "Other" Freedom Convoy Truckers

The criminal charges arising from the Freedom Convoy protests in Ottawa in February 2022 were by and large for the relatively innocuous infraction of mischief and, as the last of these cases finally conclude, most eyes are on the impending sentencing of protest leaders Chris Barber and Tamara Lich. But the sheer intensity of the prosecution of Convoy members whose activities were not as well-reported looks less like the fair administration of justice than revenge upon people who dared protest the arbitrary and oppressive measures of the Covid years. In her recently published book, Thank You, Truckers! Canada's Heroes & Those Who Helped Them, Donna Laframboise tells their story. In the combined essay and book excerpt below, Laframboise counts the severe costs of challenging an overreaching government – while reminding us that millions of ordinary Canadians supported the Freedom Convoy and all it represented.

COVID-19 UPDATES

Interview from the archives – when tennis legend Pat Cash courageously warned against covid vaccines

THIS is probably the interview I am most proud of.

Pat Cash put his head above the parapet to warn young tennis players against the vaccines they were being made to take by the sport's authorities on pain of their careers. It was TCW he chose to talk to. And his bravery came at a commercial price for him. Although the interview was reported as newsworthy by the Sun and the Express, the video was almost immediately banned by YouTube for 'violating community guidelines' – that is, it challenged the official covid vaccine narrative and that was not acceptable.

Lucy Connolly: Councillor's wife jailed for inciting racial hatred on X after Southport murders released

Conservative leader Kemi Badenoch challenged Lucy Connolly's charges, saying that "protecting people from words should not be given greater weight in law than public safety". "If the law does this, then the law itself is broken - and it's time Parliament looked again at the Public Order Act," she said in a post on X on Thursday.

"Her punishment was harsher than the sentences handed down for bricks thrown at police or actual rioting. "At that time, after Southport, Keir Starmer branded all protesters 'far-right' and called for 'fast-track prosecutions'.

Nobody is Above the Law!

Now to anyone who isn't a shitheel, Bolton, Pelosi, Bernie or any Trump hater talking about authoritarianism is fucking hilarious, given that an election was stolen in 2016, four protestors murdered, hundreds of others rounded up and imprisoned and tortured for years without trial, the whole of DV was militarized for an inauguration, an entirely fake fraud case, an entirely fake sexual assault case, an entirely fake set of outrageous politically driven lawfare cases were concocted to try to destroy Trump which included a classified documents case when Trump had Presidential authority to declassify.

<https://jupplandia.substack.com/p/nobody-is-above-the-law>

The important thing to remember is that the left's love for migrants is directly proportionate to their hatred for the British working class. It is precisely their distance from everyday Brits, and their disdain for them, that draws them ever closer to the migrant, "the Other", the person on the periphery of society that they can ostentatiously pity. Their haughty disappointment with the oiks – for voting for Brexit, for believing in sovereignty, for not giving a fuck about trans and other nonsense – is the fuel of their pro-migrant paternalism. That's what we're witnessing outside those migrant hotels: on one side, working-class protesters standing up for nationhood, and on the other middle-class agitators lording it over those little people by making a spectacle of their own presumed virtue. A class war wrapped up in a spat over immigration.

UNITED STATES

Hysterical MSM damn Trump in his quest for peace

His efforts on the Ukraine war are not inconsistent, erratic or surprising. The Trump administration has brokered peace and ceasefires around the globe. Earlier this month we saw an Azerbaijan-Armenia peace agreement. Before that, in May, the US secured a Pakistan-India ceasefire following a rapid escalation between two nuclear powers with decades of animosity and on-off war between them. In June the White House brokered a Rwandan-Congolese peace deal. In the same month Trump gave limited backing to Israel (sufficient to strike Iran's nuclear programme) but in a conditional way that confined the direct Israeli assault on Iran to 12 days of fighting. Peace deals or ceasefires have been similarly delivered between Serbia and Kosovo and between Egypt and Ethiopia. A successful Middle East tour saw cementing of communication between Israel and multiple Arab states, despite the issue of the Israel-Hamas conflict.

If the actions of this administration were being honestly reported, it would be clear that its desire to end conflicts is genuine, and has been unusually successful. One would think a US administration taking a lead in dousing war and reducing death tolls would be a good thing.

These men are scum. They are incompetent scum, who steal for a living. Was the FBI Behind the Oklahoma Bombing?

It has always been hard to believe that the truck-bombing of the A.P. Murrah Federal Building in Oklahoma City on April 19, 1995, which killed 168 people, including 19 children at a daycare center, was planned by just one or two perpetrators acting alone. However, the official story states that the mastermind was Gulf War veteran Timothy McVeigh, and that the two others sentenced with him only helped him in various ways. Did the FBI orchestrate the country's worst domestic terror attack? The truth, it appears, may never be fully uncovered.

Cultural Suicide

Why has the West Lost its Will to Exist? Our desire to behave as moral and good people within the evolving norms of our own culture, irrespective of context, has become our Achilles Heel. Tolerating the intolerant is not a virtue. Empathy for victimhood culture is neither honorable nor wise. Mercy for the guilty is cruelty to the innocent. Weaponized self-criticism is not a path to self-improvement. Compassion for the tears of our enemies is a self-inflicted wound. Peace at all costs is a recipe for subjugation. A ceasefire regardless of terms is not a better alternative to war – without terms for a lasting peace, war is preferable despite its bitter cost because violence committed in self-defence is not immoral.

Western Civilization Culture and New Generations

Western civilization is destroyed by the few, the extremely rich and influential who control every facet of our lives with help from the United Nations, NGOs, WEF, and other “civil society groups”. Generations since 1989 brought back the repackaged and rebranded communism under the umbrella of globalism. Cultural symbols, history, religion, monuments, historical artifacts were replaced in public life in the name of freedom

Animal Farm Turns 80

80 years later, Animal Farm mocks not only the Soviet Union, but the idea that liberation movements concentrating and clinging to power would ever amount to more than totalitarian farces. It offers a warning to contemporary American and European liberals who, like their counterparts in Orwell’s day, allowed themselves to be hijacked by Communism, of how it all ends, not in Obama’s ‘Right Side of History’ but in terror, tyranny and mass death.

A Thirst for Freedom: The Case for Supporting Iran's People

For more than 40 years, the people of Iran have lived under a suffocating dictatorship that has stripped them of their freedoms, denied them basic human rights, and crushed any glimmer of hope for a better future. Yet despite the unrelenting repression, the Iranian people have never stopped dreaming of liberty. They have taken to the streets again and again, often at unimaginable personal risk, demanding the right to live in dignity and determine their own future. Each time, they have been met with the full force of a ruthless regime that treats dissent as treason and humanity as an afterthought. This struggle for freedom is not a fleeting political cause — it is the very heartbeat of a nation that refuses to surrender its spirit.

USDA: Our Pets and Livestock are in Danger

As most of you know, Jill and I have been breeding horses for over two decades. We take this very seriously, and usually have somewhere between ten and twenty horses here on the farm. So, we are often confronted with what, if any, vaccine schedule to use on the foals, broodmares and performance horses on the farm. Each category has a unique set of parameters. For Jade, Jill's stallion and now our five-year-old stallion, Quartz - they are shown in USEF/USDF/FEI shows. Therefore, they are required to follow a rigid and frankly, obscene vaccination schedule to enter the showgrounds at a sanctioned show. In order to highlight just how crazy the veterinary vaccination system has become, I offer the following examples of what people are required to do in the horse world.
